

List of Tables

Table 1. Chinese trilateral aid projects . . . . .	17
Table 2. Case selection variables in this research . . . . .	41
Table 3. A breakdown of interviews . . . . .	46
Table 4. Research transparency in project . . . . .	47
Table 5. Interest-based alliance propensity of Chinese aid agencies . . .	82
Table 6. Status of three ministries in China's political system . . . . .	84
Table 7. Attitudes of China's aid agencies towards trilateral cooperation . . . . .	99
Table 8. UNDP's development assistance to China, 1979–2015 . . .	113
Table 9. China–UNDP trilateral aid projects . . . . .	122
Table 10. Summary of China's aid projects in Cambodia by 2018 . .	127
Table 11. Diplomatic landscapes of mainland China and Taiwan in the Pacific region . . . . .	162
Table 12. Examples of Chinese concessional loan projects in PNG . . .	167
Table 13. Main stakeholders in the China–Australia–PNG trilateral malaria project . . . . .	174
Table 14. US aid (grant) projects in Timor-Leste, 2005–2015 . . . . .	210
Table 15. Chinese aid (grant) projects in Timor-Leste, 2006–2015 . . .	212

This text is taken from A Cautious New Approach: China's Growing Trilateral Aid Cooperation, by Denghua Zhang, published 2020 by ANU Press, The Australian National University, Canberra, Australia.