

List of Figures

Figure 0.1: Map of research locations . . . . .	xvii
Figure 2.1: Body map Cathie . . . . .	41
Figure 2.2: Body map Sarah . . . . .	42
Figure 2.3: Body map Sarah . . . . .	44
Figure 3.1: Corroboree at Urapunga, July 2015 . . . . .	55
Figure 3.2: The Bad Ts. ‘This is my gang, my crew. We look after each other. We are a famous crew in Ngukurr.’ . . . . .	68
Figure 3.3: ‘This place is important, because this is where we go to talk and make decisions.’ . . . . .	70
Figure 3.4: ‘It’s important to teach children to share, we teach them that.’ . . . . .	71
Figure 3.5: ‘Our children’s futures: our kids will be strong like us.’ . . .	74
Figure 4.1: Body map Nickeisha. . . . .	97
Figure 4.2: Body map Brenae . . . . .	99
Figure 4.3: Salty plums in a soft drink bottle . . . . .	100
Figure 5.1: Facebook status from a young man in Ngukurr (11 May 2011). . . . .	119
Figure 5.2: Facebook status from a young mother from Minyerri (16 June 2013). . . . .	119
Figure 5.3: Facebook status from a young mother from Ngukurr (16 July 2013) . . . . .	119

This text is taken from Indigenous Australian Youth Futures: Living the Social Determinants of Health, edited by Kate Senior, Richard Chenhall and Victoria Burbank, published 2021 by ANU Press, The Australian National University, Canberra, Australia.