
Jenny CHAN is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at the Hong Kong Polytechnic University and an elected vice president of the International Sociological Association’s Research Committee on Labour Movements. She is the co-author, with Mark Selden and Pun Ngai, of Dying for an iPhone: Apple, Foxconn, and the Lives of China’s Workers (Haymarket Books and Pluto Press, 2020; translated into Korean by Narumbooks, 2021). Currently she is investigating China’s digital transformation from the level of production to logistics. Her research, funded by the Junior Research Fellowship of the University of Oxford’s Kellogg College (2015 to 2018) and the Early Career Scheme of the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong (2018 to 2021), focuses on the informalisation of work and employment in a globalising China.

Ka-Ming CHAN is a PhD candidate at the Geschwister Scholl Institute of Political Science at the Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich. During his graduate study, he was a visiting researcher at the Berlin Social Science Centre (WZB). His main research interest lies at the intersection of autocratisation, radical politics, information updating during elections, and voting behaviour.

Timothy CHEEK is Director of the Centre for Chinese Research and Professor and Louis Cha Chair in Chinese Research at the School of Public Policy and Global Affairs and the Department of History at the University of British Columbia. His research, teaching, and translating focus on the recent history of China, especially the Chinese Communist Party and intellectual debate in China. He has contributed to scholarly and public conversations on the nature of CCP rule. His most recent book is The Chinese Communist Party: A Century in Ten Lives (Cambridge University Press, 2021), co-edited with Klaus Mühlhahn and Hans van de Ven. In recent years, he has been working with Chinese intellectuals to explore avenues of collaborative research and translation.

Wei An CHEN is an undergraduate student in sociology at National Taiwan University. Her research interests include transnationalism, social movements, and identity politics. She is currently working on a research project on the impact of the 2019 pro-democracy movement in Hong Kong on the political identity of Taiwan’s overseas students in the city.

Ivan FRANCESCHINI is a Postdoctoral Fellow at The Australian National University. His research mainly focuses on labour issues in China and the social impact of Chinese investment in Southeast Asia—in particular, Cambodia. With Tommaso Facchin, he co-directed the documentaries Dreamwork China (2011) and Boramey: Ghosts in the Factory (2021). His latest books are the co-edited volumes Xinjiang Year Zero (ANU Press, 2022) and Proletarian China: One Century of Chinese Labour (forthcoming with Verso Books in 2022). He founded and co-edits the Made in China Journal and The People’s Map of Global China.
Diego GULLOTTA teaches Cultural Studies at the Department of Chinese Language and Literature at East China Normal University. He is the co-author of the book Città senza limiti: Studi culturali sull’urbanizzazione cinese [City without Limits: Cultural Studies on Chinese Urbanisation] (Cafoscarina, 2016).

Ming-sho HO is a Professor at the Department of Sociology, National Taiwan University, and the Director of the Research Institute for the Humanities and Social Sciences, Ministry of Science and Technology (Taiwan). His research interests include social movements, labour, and environmental issues. He published Challenging Beijing’s Mandate from Heaven: Taiwan’s Sunflower Movement and Hong Kong’s Umbrella Movement (Temple University Press, 2019) and Working Class Formation in Taiwan: Fractured Solidarity in State-Owned Enterprises, 1945–2012 (Palgrave Macmillan, 2014).

Petula Sik Ying HO is a Professor in the Department of Social Work and Social Administration at the University of Hong Kong. Her English-language books include Women Doing Intimacy: Gender, Family, and Modernity in Britain and Hong Kong (co-authored with Stevi Jackson, Palgrave Macmillan, 2020) and Love and Desire in Hong Kong (co-authored with Ka Tat Tsang, Hong Kong University Press, 2012). In Chinese, she published I Am Ho Sik Ying, 55 Years Old (我係何式凝：今年五十五, Joint Publishing, 2013) and Everyday Life in the Age of Resistance (抗命時代的日常, Red Publish, 2015). Her research projects explore the use of documentary film and multimedia theatre to integrate art and scholarship.

George L. ISRAEL, PhD (2008), University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, is Professor of History at Middle Georgia State University. He has authored two books and several articles on Chinese intellectual history and Wang Yangming.

Minnie Ming LI is a sociologist with research interests in medical sociology, social networks and identity, and gender and sexuality. She received her PhD in 2017 from the Department of Sociology at the Chinese University of Hong Kong. She has been a Lecturer at the Education University of Hong Kong, the Chinese University of Hong Kong, and the University of Hong Kong since 2017, where she has taught courses on Chinese society, culture and identity, self and society, gender and sexuality, and sociological research methods.

Promise LI is an activist and writer from Hong Kong and Los Angeles. He engages in local and transnational political work with grassroots organisations such as Lausan Collective, Internationalism from Below, and Chinatown Community for Equitable Development.

Yawen LI is a PhD candidate in Comparative Literature at the National University of Singapore and King’s College London. Her PhD investigates how postcolonial literature can inform new ways of remembering and imagining family and kinship in contemporary China.

Kevin LIN is a researcher focusing on labour and employment relations, collective actions, and civil society in China.
Lili Lin obtained a PhD in Cultural Studies and is a postdoctoral fellow at a Chinese university. Her research interests include cultural studies, gender studies, and popular culture. Her latest publication is ‘Blurring Life and Work: The Predicament of Young Middle-Class Women in Shanghai’, published in Cultural Studies in 2021.

Shih-Diing Liu (刘世鼎) is Professor of Communication at the University of Macau. His articles have appeared in Dushu (读书), Twenty-First Century (二十一世纪), Positions: Asia Critique, Third World Quarterly, Interventions, and New Left Review. He is the author of The Politics of People: Protest Cultures in China (SUNY Press, 2019).

Liu Wai Tong (廖偉棠) is a poet, writer, and photographer. He was born in 1975 in Guangdong Province, later moved to Hong Kong, lived in Beijing for five years, and currently lives in Taipei. Liu has received the Hong Kong Biennial Award for Literature, the Taiwan Times Literature Award, and the United Daily News Literature Award. He was awarded the 2012 Hong Kong Arts Development Award for Best Artist in the literature category, and is often invited to international literary events, such as the 2011 Taipei Poetry Festival, the 2013 Poetry International in Rotterdam, and the 2016 Singapore Writers Festival.

Maurizio Marinelli is Professor of Global China and Co-Director of the Asia Centre at the University of Sussex. He is also an Honorary Professor at the Institute for Global Prosperity, University College London. The focus of his research is located at the crossroads of Chinese history, politics, and society. He has conducted research for several years on the transformation of Tianjin, from the foreign concession era (1860–1945) to the present, publishing his findings on Tianjin’s urban transformation in numerous articles and two books, Italy’s Encounter with Modern China: Imperial Dreams, Strategic Ambitions (Palgrave Macmillan, 2014, co-edited with Giovanni Andornino) and China: A Historical Geography of the Urban (Palgrave Macmillan, 2018, co-edited with Zhang Xiaohong and Ding Yannan). He is currently working on a manuscript entitled Hong Kong: Markets, Street Hawkers, and the Fight against Gentrification (Bloomsbury Press, 2023).

Robert Ovetz is a Senior Lecturer in Political Science at San José State University. He is the editor of Workers’ Inquiry and Global Class Struggle: Strategies, Tactics, Objectives (Pluto Press, 2020), author of When Workers Shot Back: Class Conflict from 1877 to 1921 (Brill, 2018/Haymarket Books, 2019). His next book, tentatively titled We the Elite: How the US Constitution Serves the Few, is forthcoming in 2022 with Pluto Press. He can be followed at @OvetzRobert and emailed at rfovetz@riseup.net. His writings can be found at sjsu.academia.edu/RobertOvetzPhD.

Wei SHI (史唯) is an Associate Professor of Communication at the University of Macau. She was a reporter and producer at China Central Television in Beijing during the 1990s. Her articles have appeared in Taiwan: A Radical Quarterly in Social Studies (台湾社会研究季刊), Reflexion (思想), Router: A Journal of Cultural Studies (文化研究), Renjian Thought Review (人间思想), Social Movement Studies, Journal of Youth Studies, Chinese Journal of Communication, Inter-Asia Cultural Studies, and Continuum. She is the author of Drifting Around China’s Las Vegas: Migrant Workers in Macau (澳门移工: 漂泊在中国的拉斯维加斯) (City University of Hong Kong Press, 2018).

Craig SMITH is Senior Lecturer of Translation Studies at the Asia Institute, University of Melbourne. Trained as a historian, his research focuses on the intellectual history of China in the early twentieth century. He is the author of Chinese Asianism 1894–1945 (Harvard University Asia Center, 2021) and co-editor of Translating the Occupation: The Japanese Invasion of China, 1931–1945 (University of British Columbia Press, 2021). His writing on China-centred transnational regionalism has appeared in Twentieth-Century China, Cross-Currents, and Modern Chinese Literature and Culture. He also regularly translates contemporary Chinese and Japanese articles.

Tabitha SPEELMAN is a PhD candidate at Leiden University researching the politics of immigration in mainland China. She tweets on China-related migration research at @migrantchina (group account).

Ka-ming WU is an Associate Professor and Director of the Masters Program in Intercultural Studies in the Department of Cultural and Religious Studies at the Chinese University of Hong Kong. Trained as a cultural anthropologist, she has undertaken extensive ethnographic research to examine the cultural politics of state and society, waste, and most recently, gender and nationalism in contemporary China. She has published the books Reinventing Chinese Tradition: The Cultural Politics of Late Socialism (University of Illinois Press, 2015) and Living with Waste: Economy, Community and Space in a Beijing Scavengers’ Site (Chinese University of Hong Kong Press, 2017).

Shui-yin Sharon YAM is an Associate Professor in Writing, Rhetoric, and Digital Studies and Faculty Affiliate in Gender and Women’s Studies at the University of Kentucky. She is a diasporic Hongkonger, and the author of Inconvenient Strangers: Transnational Subjects and the Politics of Citizenship (Ohio State University Press, 2019). Her research focuses on transnational rhetorics, political emotions, gender, and race.

Johnson Ching-Yin YEUNG is a Hong Kong human rights advocate, chairperson of Amnesty International Hong Kong, former convener of the now disbanded Civil Human Rights Front, and former student leader. He works as regional campaigner for the Clean Clothes Campaign, an organisation that advocates for a worker-centred, ethical, and sustainable fashion industry. He obtained a LL.M at the University of Hong Kong, with a dissertation about the Foreign NGO Law in mainland China. His interests include civic space, business and human rights, mass movements, and digital campaigning. He is a proud member of the #MilkTeaAlliance.
ZENG Jinyan, a scholar, writer, and documentary filmmaker, is a Postdoctoral Fellow at Lund University, Sweden (2021–23). Zeng was awarded her PhD at the University of Hong Kong in 2017, the 2017 Oak Fellowship (film and photography) at Colby College, and the 2020 Postdoctoral Fellowship at the University of Haifa. Zeng specialises in gender and sexuality, culture and politics, intellectual identity and social activism, and ethnicity, with particular emphasis on China. Her book Feminism and Genesis of the Citizen Intelligentsia in China (City University of Hong Kong Press, 2016) received a Publishing Award in the Social Science category of the 2017 Hong Kong Publishing Biennial Awards. Zeng produced and co-directed the documentary films Prisoners in Freedom City (Hu Jia, Zeng Jinyan, 2007) and Outcry and Whisper (Wen Hai, Zeng Jinyan, Trish McAdam, 2020), wrote the script for the short 3D animation A Poem to Liu Xia (Trish McAdam, 2015), and produced the feature documentary film We the Workers (Wen Hai, 2017).